

Mission Critical

At Meinhardt, we optimise engineering and IT systems to meet the needs of current and future technology while keeping in mind the variable multiple user requirements.

Cutting Edge Engineering and Technological Solutions

The mission critical sector is constantly transforming, growing and diversifying. The ideal technology environment is one where your business processes are flawlessly translated into an application environment and then optimally deployed into a technology infrastructure. The technology infrastructure is hosted by critical facilities that are aligned to the business process. And everything is configured to seamlessly adapt to future eventualities.

Unique amongst our peers, we adopt the latest technology for both engineering and IT solutions, offering MEP and ICT design services as a single integrated services. Meinhardt leads the market in terms of the design and certification of multi-tier data centres. We optimise engineering and IT systems to meet the needs of current and future technology.

With 40 offices worldwide, Meinhardt offers vendor neutral end-to-end consulting services across application architecture, technology infrastructure and critical facilities. We place equal emphasis on each discipline resulting in a unique suite of global consulting services. Our Clients are from diversified backgrounds that include the financial, telecom, government, hosting and technology sectors.
